THE WHICH? GOOD FOOD GUIDE 2012

The Wheatsheaf at Oaksey is the only new entry in Wiltshire for 2012. The pub is now one of only 1100 restaurants nationwide recommended by the Good Food Guide 2012.

Chef Proprietor, Tony Robson-Burrell, said “this is a big team effort and thanks to all our loyal customers for recommending us to the guide. We’re delighted that a small village pub can achieve such recognition. Our kitchen team is myself, my son Jack and our pastry chef Kevin Mulraney and together we have worked very hard to be consistent. The Which Good Food Guide remains highly regarded in the industry and we are chuffed to bits to be included in it! Quality ingredients are crucial. A big thank you should go to Chesterton Farm in Cirencester who have consistently supplied us with top quality meat for the last 18 months.”

The pub also has 2 rosettes for food from the AA and has held them for the last 5 years.

Kind regards,

Tony & Holly Robson-Burrell
